DANGER AHEAD!

S. K. Mardis, A. M., Ped. D., Head of Department of Rural Education.

Stop! Look! Listen! One Million School Children of Ohio Endangered! The governor of the state has a proclamation to the people of Ohio calling their attention to the danger of the children and the future prosperity of the state. The State Super-intendent of Public Instruction, the leading educators of the state, editorial columns of the leading newspapers, the magazines, the clever car-toonists, and the ministers in bun-dreds of churches have all joined in warning the people of the great threatening danger to the children of our state and nation. Last week was set aside by proclamation of the Chief Magistrate of the State for the purpose of studying the responsibilities of the people, individually and collectively, to the ohtidren of the state as future citizens of the million children are in the schools of Ohio. What these children will be in twenty years from now depends very largely upon what we do for them now, for no civilization ever rises higher than the quality of the schools. "It is quite fitting, therefore, that we unde in striving to generate a hart and now has his house and barn deeper sympathy for school work to the end that we may put it upon a higher plane so that it will appeal to all people and to awract to the work of teaching the very best young people we have in Ohio. The opportunity lies before us to do noble service for humanity by enlisting in the cause of education the very elect of our young people to the end that the children of Ohio may have the best teaching possible." These are noble sentiments worthy of our governor, whom we believe to be sincerely interested in the cause of general education. Lyman Beecher said, years "We must educate! We must edu-cate! Or we must perish by our own prosperity! If we do not, short will be our race from the cradle to IF IN OUR HASTE TO BE RICH AND MIGHTY, WE OUTRUN OUR LITERARY AND RELIGIOUS INSTITUTIONS. Yet gency certificates and 400 temporary certificates have been issued this current year. It would have been far better for every person concerned to have let thesesschools remained closed for lack of competent teachers. If this whole campaign is not a hu miliating failure and a sham, it MUST be re-enforced with enough money to induce these high typed young people to enter teaching as a life work. have no moral right to ask the bright young people to enter this highly important and even necessary work for the state without paying the salaries that will justify them for the preparation and time. This is a public ques-tion in which every citizen of the state should do his full duty in contri bution through adequate taxation, and moral encouragement and support. Teaching must be made a profession on a parity in requirements with any profession in the nation, and the annual compensation for life must be on a parity with any other profession or business. There are thousands o the best young people, both men and women, who will be glad to enter teaching as a life work, but not to be humiliated, looked upon in half pity and half secret contempt and doomed to half rations and an uncertain ten ure. The less than fifty-cent dollar will not pass in the tenching profes-sion much longer unless the number of these dollars are doubled to make their purchasing power on a parity. Let Ohio get down to good busines sense in this educational campaign and devise a source of revenue ade-quate to the occasion, and needs. Then our educational institutions will be compelled to go begging for com-
